Wants Vinson

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15, 1934
Mr. J. C. Nickell,
West Liberty, Kentucky.
Dear Mr. Nickell:

You want to help the program of President Franklin D. Roosevelt succeed. Of that I am sure. As a party worker, you have a great responsibility on November sixth, and I feel sure in writing you at this time, that you will not shirk the duty that is yours. If President Roosevelt's program for economic recovery and a return of prosperity is to succeed, he must have friends on guard from the top to the bottom. Your work at the polls on November sixth must be the answer to the critics of the Roosevelt administration.

Your United States Senators, Hon. Alben W. Barkley and Hon. M. M. Logan, have been of great service to President Roosevelt and the Administration. I know that they will continue to cooperate closely in the next Congress. In addition to Senators Barkley and Logan, Hon. Ruby Laffoon, your Governor, has likewise cooperated with the National Administration. The People of Kentucky are to be congratulated upon having a Democratic Administration at Frankfort to help the Administration in Washington in future stages of the Recovery Program.

If the people of all political parties will join in returning Hon. Fred M. Vinson to the House of Representatives, I know he will cooperate with the National Administration in the best interests of Kentucky. During the next two years, the President will need a Democratic Congress to lend sympathetic support to every phase of the Recovery Program, and with Hon. Alben W. Barkley and Hon. M. M. Logan in the Senate, and Congressman Vinson in the House, the eighth district would be ably represented in the Nation's Capital.

Of course, this is a state, and not a National Election, and the responsibility of the campaign rests with the state and local organizations. If there have been minor differences of opinion, I am sure they will be forgotten, and everyone will work with the state leaders in the interest of all. By working shoulder to shoulder with real team work, I am satisfied we can achieve a great victory.

With best wishes and deep appreciation of what you have already done, I am

Sincerely,

JAES A. FARLEY
P. S. Friends of the Administration in Washington will be grateful for all your efforts. J. A. F.

AMERICAN LEGION NEWS

Holly Coffee Post No. 68, of the American Legion of Kentucky, held its regular meeting on Saturday afternoon, the 20th of this month. Several important business matters were discussed. Among these business matters discussed was the matter of building of a Post Home, Lynn Wells, Rowland Stacy and J. Blaine Nickell were appointed as a committee on arrangements and plans and ways and means for the home.

Arrangements were made for the organization of a troop of Boy Scouts for Morgan county. Commander George Owsley and J. Blaine Nickell were designated to take the matter up with Superintendent Ova O. Haney and with the heads of the schools in the county.

It was agreed that in as much as Armistice Day comes on Sunday this year that we observe the day on Saturday, the 10th day of November. A committee, consisting of John Helton, Oscar Caskey and Alex Cantrell was appointed to prepare a dinner for all veterans and their families. This dinner will be free to all veterans, regardless of whether or not they are members of the Legion, and we hope that every veteran in the county will meet with us at that time and have a good time with us. J. Blaine Nickell, Phil Donovan and Lynn Wells were appointed to make arrangements for amusement and entertainment for the veterans and their families. This celebration will be worth your while and we hope that none of you will miss it.

Membership are coming in fine. Holly Wright is still leading Blaine Nickell in membership obtained and they are both going after them. See one of these fellows at once and pay your dues.

LADIES' AID MEETS

Cannel City, Ky.—The Ladies' Aid society of the Cannel City Union church met Thursday, Oct. 11, with Mrs. M. R. Elam.

Mrs. W. T. Stamper, vice president, had charge of the meeting, which was opened by singing "Since Jesus Came into My Heart" and "Constantly Abiding." Mrs. D. P. Peyton was at the piano. The hostess gave the devotional, reading the forty-third Psalm. Miss Sallie Minor led in prayer, which was concluded with the Lord's prayer. The treasurer called the roll and the secretary read the minutes of the last meeting. Mrs. Elam reported that the cleaning at the church was about completed, and was authorized to pay for this work.

At the conclusion of the business meeting, each member expressed her happiness in having our beloved president, Mrs. A. C. Carter, with us again after her long illness. Mrs. Carter expressed her pleasure in meeting with the Aid again and commended the members for the faithful work they had carried on during her absence. A new quilt was started and the work progressed nicely. The hostess served delightful refreshments of sweet muffins and hot chocolate.

Present were Mrs. W. T. Stamper, Mrs. A. C. Carter, Miss Sallie Minor, Mrs. Thos. Davis, Mrs. Phil Donovan, Mrs. D. P. Peyton, Mrs. Clay Burton, Mrs. G. W. Leslie, Mrs. G. E. Nickell, Mrs. Wayne Dunnigan, and Mrs. M. R. Elam.

MASONIC MEETING

At its regular meeting Saturday night, Highland Lodge No. 311, F. & A. M., conferred the Master Mason degree on Labe Hammond, Stanley Gullett, and Robert Arnett.

Refreshments of cake and ice cream were served by members of the Eastern Star, and the gratitude of the lodge membership for this hospitality was voiced by the master in a short but elegant appreciation.

The master of the lodge, C. P. H. nry, just returned from the grand lodge meeting at Louisville, gave a report of that meeting and a fine description of the work of the Widows' and Orphans' Home maintained at Louisville by the state organization.

The secretary reported that the finances of the lodge now warranted the payment of all outstanding indebtedness, and on his motion a warrant was ordered drawn on the treasurer to clear the lodge of debt.

Visitors from Greenville, Elk Fork, Ezel, and Chapel lodges were present, several of whom assisted in the degree work.

LET'S GO SOMEWHERE

"We must kick out the crooks and grafters. That is the only fault of our government at the present time. It is the cause of the prolongation of the depression and of the murderous strikes that have occurred throughout the nation."—LIBERTY.

Well, suppose we admit all this is true, who are these "crooks and grafters"? My complaint about such editorial is that they point out a disease, but suggest no remedy. The editorial suggests that there are oodles of "Crooks and grafters" to be kicked out, but does not tell us who they are. Nobody, perhaps, is in better shape to kick out a few than Liberty. An editorial naming them would bring instant response in the shape of indictments. Come, my brother and do YOUR duty.

SALES TAX TO HELP COUNTY

According to estimates made and compiled by the Kentucky Tax Reduction Association, Morgan county is expected to benefit to the amount of $30,000 each year payable to the county treasurer for the use of the fiscal court quarterly beginning with the first payment on November 15. Some counties are expecting to reduce their local tax levies in anticipation of this state money. Morgan county probably cannot do that as the fiscal court must spend this state money on its road and bridge bonds outstanding.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks to friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy during the recent illness and death of our dear wife and mother, Mrs. Lizzie (Jones) May. We also wish to thank donors of flowers and cards, Bro. Harry Murphy for consolatory words, and Sister and Patrick for their efficient management of the funeral arrangements. We are deeply indebted to our bereaved husband, S. H. May, and to his children.

The New Deal

By Chase McClure

Foreword: Let us say at the beginning that not every eye which strays over this series of articles will be pleased. Some of you kind readers may feel so upset that you will want to vomit. Some, whose grandfather, perhaps, was a dyed-in-the-wool Republican, may feel hurt and want to cancel his subscription to this paper. Pray, do not think of it. The days when a man could sit in the chimney corner and chew Days Work tobacco and swear by, or at, either the Republican or Democratic parties are forever lost.

Things are really happening in this land of ours. No more dreary statements from Washington that prosperity is just around the corner. In spite of what Mr. Hoover said about grass growing in the streets, those men in Washington certainly are letting no grass grow under their feet. And although Wall Street and a certain section of the Republican party have turned loose a terrific "whispering campaign" against the administration and its work, great things are being accomplished.

It shall be the purpose of these articles to show, in a simple way, what the New Deal has accomplished for the common citizen, the so-called "forgotten man." While we are reading these articles, let us forget, as those men in Washington have forgotten, that we are Republicans or Democrats, but rather let us remember that we are Americans, bent on pushing on to a greater and more prosperous future than this country has ever enjoyed.

What Is It About?

The New Deal is a swift kick, and it caught us right where it would do the most good; in the seat of the pants. For three years this country had been asleep, and the nightmares we had were very unpleasant. While it is true that Mr. Hoover poked us at intervals and told us to wake up because prosperity was "just around the corner," we could scarcely hear his voice for the terrible noise of bank doors slamming shut for the last time in towns throughout the nation. (Let it be understood now that we wouldn't pick on Mr. Hoover for the world. After all, the poor old boy did the best he could.) The triumphant crow of the Rooster, heralding a new day, was a welcome cry which set us leaping out of bed eager for the New Day.

Things were in one sweet mess when Franklin D. Roosevelt entered the White House on March 4, 1933. Hoover, The Great Engineer, had permitted the country to be damned, and the people's pocketbook to be drained. Big business and the bankers had shot some seven billions of the peoples' savings in Wall Street when the Big Crash came. Money was as tight as a Scotchman, and those who had it used to take it out of the mattress to show to the children on Christmas days in order to make them feel good. As someone has said before us, in reference to Mr. Hoover's campaign promise, "There wasn't even two chickens in every garage." The government sat in pot-guzzled indecision in Washington and allowed the people to sink into a despair bordering revolution.

But the New Deal shot the works. Things began to hum. It was not Mr. Roosevelt's belief that millions should starve in a land piled and stacked with milk and honey. The Old Order had and continues to say, "To Hell with 'em, let 'em work or starve." The New Deal says, "They shall not starve in this land of plenty—in a land where their hands and the hands of their fathers helped to build up these stores of plenty." Because of the fact that Roosevelt can look down from the heights and realize that the poor man's stomach would like a square meal at times also; that he wants a home, and that he will work for these things if given the opportunity, the fatty, rich plugs who are afraid, and with good cause, that their income taxes will be kicked up, shout "Socialist! He is no American." The fact is that Mr. Roosevelt comes nearer being the ideal American which Washington and Lincoln dreamed of than any president since the Rail-splitter.

The two most valuable medicines which the New Deal has poured into the suffering stomach of the country are Hope, and Action. As long as a man keeps walking thru a snow storm, he will not freeze to death. Not so if he decides to take a snooze. The government has set the pace for private initiative by setting on foot such terrible pokes at the depression as the PWA, CWA, FERA and CCC. People at this time would not even think of selling country back to the Indians, as one man wanted to do during the last administration. The old American spirit is going to it again.

Many of the plans the New Deal has set on foot are not worth a flinker's cuss. Many of them will fade and be forgotten. But they will have accomplished their purpose; that of beating the drums at the circus while the chief performer, Fearless Frank Roosevelt, swallows Wall Street, Al Smith, and the Depression one at a time.

The New Deal is not new. It is not some political scheme cooked up in the fertile brain of Roosevelt, altho he is the one who set up the machine and pours the oil on the bearings. It is nothing more than the idea that the government should serve the people who support it, instead of the Old Order's idea that the people should support the government and the gang of pot-bellied politicians who hang around the pork barrel. The New Dealers sincerely believe that the little man should have some share in the stupendous wealth that has been piled up within the boundaries of this country. The New Deal began the day when we were able to produce more goods than we could consume. The New Deal merely seeks a way of distributing this surplus of goods equally among the people.

Two deciding factors which made the New Deal inevitable was the end of westward expansion and the entrance of the machine into industry. During all previous depressions, those unfortunates who had no means of livelihood were dumped westward on new lands where they could at least take a grubbing hoe and dig and sell sassafras. But the time arrived when there was no more rich western lands to be had for the taking. Reason number one for the New Deal. A long time ago a man discovered that if you take a round object with a hole in the middle and put two handles in the middle it will roll along when pushed and carry easily more weight than is possible for a man. This simple discovery of the wheel, and it's first practical use in the wheel barrow, thousands of years later was to put millions of men out of employment. The increasing entrance of machines into industry and every line of business has kept lopping men off the payrolls until there are now millions of men, once happily employed, who will never find jobs again. Reason number two. What will happen to these men? Can the government adopt a hands-off attitude, and sit back and let them starve? The New Deal says "No!"

Next week: We take a look at the men who are working so eagerly there in Washington; The New Dealers, themselves. We will peek into their private lives and see where they came from, and why.

HERE FROM MICHIGAN

W. M. Colloway a former Morgan county man of Inkster, Michigan was here the first of the week. Mr. Colloway combined business with pleasure bringing some fine Irish potatoes and selling them here and buying up a lot of Morgan county sorghum to sell to Michiganders.

The federal government has saved more than 33 million dollars a year by refunding government bonds. The Liberty Loan bonds which bore 4 1/2 per cent interest, are being retired by procuring money from the sale of new bonds which bear a lower rate of interest. The treasury department has demonstrated smart finance and a substantial saving has been effected.

ELECT VINSON

West Liberty, Ky., Oct. 25, 1934
To the Democrats of Morgan County: I have just been designated as your Campaign Chairman for Morgan county for the ensuing congressional campaign as you all know that the only race that we have this fall is for Congress and Hon. Fred M. Vinson is the Democratic nominee in this district and you all know that he has been one of the best Congressmen that Kentucky has ever had, and is now a member of the powerful Ways and Means committee and is a real representative for our district so we want to get busy and get out the vote and make Morgan county a banner county for him.

There has been a committee selected to assist in this campaign in the county, but we want every Democrat to consider himself a committee of one to assist in getting the vote out and if you have any suggestions that you think will be helpful I will appreciate your suggestion and help.

Very Truly Yours,

J. C. Nickell,

Democratic Campaign Chairman,
Morgan County, Ky.

SEWING CIRCLE MEETS

Cannel City, Ky.—The Church of God Sewing Circle met Oct. 19 at the home of Mrs. D. N. Haney at Stacy Fork. The president, Mrs. W. T. Stamper, was in charge of the devotional service. The meeting was opened by singing "In the Garden" and "Sweet Hour of Prayer." Miss Jewel Haney read the first chapter of John. Prayer was offered by Mrs. Lula Terrell.

After the usual business session the hostess served delicious homemade candies to the following guests: Mrs. W. T. Stamper, Mrs. Rissie Lykins, Mrs. J. D. Benton, Mrs. George Collingworth, Mrs. Cleve Stacy, Mrs. M. H. Ferguson, Mrs. Phil Donovan, Mrs. S. H. Ratliff, Mrs. Lula Terrell, Mrs. D. N. Haney, Miss Garnett Patrick and Miss Jewel Haney.

The circle stayed until a late hour and each member declared the afternoon had been a very enjoyable one. They hope to be invited to this home again.

WINNING SO FAR

The Morgan county high school basketball team visited the Crockett team Wednesday and returned with a victory of 11 to 8. This is the first defeat Crockett has ever received on their home court.

Of three games preceding this the boys are very glad to say they have won two of them. Every boy on the team is looking forward to be winners of the tournament. Coach Opa McKenzie seems to be proud of the team. He has several games scheduled and is hoping to win them all.

Color of Negro Babies

All infants, whether born of white or colored parents, have skin of a pinkish beet-red hue within the first 12 hours following birth, writes G. R. Turner in the Kansas City Times. Babies of the Negroid type are of only slightly darker color during this period of infancy, but immediately thereafter a rapid darkening of the skin occurs. Not, however, until they are one month old does the skin register the normal dark pigmentation characteristic of adult negroes.

Hear and Live

MEETING CLOSES SUNDAY NIGHT

The revival meeting at the Baptist church will end Sunday night. If you have not yet heard the evangelist, Rev. G. G. Lanier of Ashland, you should by all means come out and hear him tonight. Rev. Lanier is a forceful preacher, and you cannot afford to miss hearing him. His messages are brought direct from the Bible, and he is able to make himself understood.

Attendance has been good the past week, and a great deal of interest has been manifested, but there are greater possibilities. The meeting is here to help you, come and get the benefit while it lasts.

Come and listen with a willing ear "And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."

BRIEFING SERVICE OFFERED

Designed to aid members of the Kentucky bar in investigating points of law, a briefing service has been established at the university of Louisville school of law, Dr. J. A. McClain, dean of the law school, has announced. The service, which is being offered without charge, is under the direction of Attorney Norman Goldberg, research supervisor, who will be aided by several outstanding students of the school. All lawyers from throughout the state are being invited to submit to the briefing service staff any question upon which they are unable, because of limited library facilities or for other reasons, to find the law surrounding the subject. The staff will return to the lawyer a complete brief of the authorities on each question asked.

The briefing service plan places the school of law library of 17,000 volumes in which is contained practically every reported English and American decision, as well as the leading texts and treatises on the law, and the statutes of over one half of the states, at the service of all Kentucky lawyers.

The students selected to work on the project under Mr. Goldberg are Homer B. Parrent, Anchorage; Selden Y. Trimble, Hopkinsville; Samuel R. Wells, Elizabethtown; James G. Ratliff, Princeton; Raymond Bosmeyer and Raymond Stephenson, Louisville. Requests for information may be mailed to the Briefing Service Staff, University of Louisville School of Law, 312 Armory place, Louisville, Ky.

FARMERS' COLUMN

ABOUT THE FARM

The best pullets mature early and begin to lay early. They also lay steadily through the year. The kind not to keep mature late and begin to lay late in the fall, and then stop laying early the next summer.

Clean irons are necessary for good results in ironing clothes. Common irons can be washed and then rubbed with sand paper, ashes or salt. Rough irons can be polished with emery paper and then washed and rubbed with wax.

There is enough fertilizer value in tobacco stalks to warrant storing them under shelter until spring. They should not be spread until about the time spring growth begins. Figured at commercial fertilizer prices tobacco stalks are worth $10 a ton.

Every child over two years of age should have a quart of milk a day to provide for growth and for building bones and muscles. Some of this milk may be eaten in soups, puddings, cereals and cocoa. Buttermilk may take the place of milk if plenty of butter is served.

Oil drained from the crank case of an automobile or tractor may be used to protect parts of machinery that tend to rust during the winter. Apply with a paint brush or cloth. Tongues and other wood parts should be painted in the fall.

Water is the most necessary and yet one of the most inexpensive livestock feeds. More farmers are putting down wells or improving springs and ponds every year. Write the college of agriculture at Lexington for concrete water trough plans.

HENS TO BE PROFITABLE

Farmers owning good laying hens and producing most of their feed may expect a profit from poultry this fall and winter and probably next year, speakers said at the eleventh annual poultry field day at the agricultural experiment station of the university of Kentucky at Lexington.

However, feed prices are so high that there probably will be little money from common flocks, especially if grain must be purchased.

There now are 5 percent fewer hens on farms than a year ago and 10 percent fewer than the five-year average.

Production is 6 to 10 percent under a year ago and 15 percent below the five-year average.

Dr. J. Holmes Martin, head of the poultry department, told the visitors at the meeting that the experiment station is saving the poultry raisers thousands of dollars annually by telling them what not to do—advising them against using worthless remedies, paying out money for rations that could be produced on their own farms, and otherwise counseling them against get-rich-quick methods.

W. D. Termohlen, a representative of the agricultural adjustment administration, and D. D. Slade, Lexington, president of the International Baby Chick Association and chairman of the hatchery code coordinating committee, discussed codes and other methods of adjusting poultry production.

TO CONTINUE PROGRAM

Kentucky farmers, in a state-wide poll, voted in favor of continuing the corn-hog adjustment program.

On the question, "Do you favor an adjustment program dealing with corn and hogs in 1935?" 8,313 contract signers voted "yes," and 654 contract signers voted "no." A total of 488 farmers who did not sign corn-hog contracts voted for the program next year, while 138 non-signers voted against it.

On the question of a one-contract-per-farm adjustment program, to become effective in 1936, 6,857 contract signers voted in the affirmative, and 1,390 contract signers voted against it. 371 non-signers favored the one-contract plan and 172 non-signers voted against it.

Approximately 24,000 Kentucky farmers signed corn-hog adjustment contracts.

FARM INCOME INCREASES

Farm income, including rental and benefit payments, for the third quarter of 1934 has increased $192,000,000 over the third quarter in 1933 and $505,000,000 over the same period in 1932, according to Louis H. Bean, economic advisor to the agricultural adjustment administration.

For the three months, June, July and August, 1934, total farm income in the United States, including $133,000,000 in rental and benefit payments, was $1,508,000,000 as compared to $1,316,000,000 in June, July and August, 1933 and $913,000,000 in the same period of 1932, an increase of 65 per cent in two years.

This is the highest three-month level reached since the rise which started in the second quarter of 1933 but still 33 per cent below the pre-depression level. Income for the month of August, 1934, including rental and benefit payments, averaged approximately 80 per cent above the low level of the first quarter of 1933. These comparisons take into account the usual seasonal changes in farm marketings.

While farm income increases have been partially offset by the increases in price of commodities which farmers purchase, the net increase is encouraging. Prices paid by farmers on August 15 averaged 25 per cent above the level of March, 1933. This indicates that the purchasing power of farm products in exchange for commodities had a net increase of approximately 44 per cent, according to Mr. Bean.

Higher prices that farmers are now receiving and a large total of rental and benefit payments are expected to sustain the level of farm income and offset the reduction in volume of farm marketing due to smaller crops. During August, farmers received in rental and benefit payments and from the sale of cattle and from option payments, nearly 70 million dollars. Final figures on similar payments for September are expected to total approximately 85 million dollars.

FAILED TO REPORT

President Roosevelt has been commended for disregarding the preeminent demand of the United States Chamber of Commerce to tell them what he intended to do about mostly everything. Perhaps some of these high-bat gentlemen will tumble some day to the fact that are no longer running the United States, but are only an integral and important part thereof like us common folks.

FINDS BANKS WILLING, BORROWERS CAUTIOUS

Prominent Writer Refutes Statements Bankers Are Refusing Sound Loans—Describes Reasons for Reduced Volume of Credit.

FIGURES supplied by typical, well-managed banks in different parts of the country show that a high proportion of all applications for loans have been granted in the past year or two, says Albert W. Atwood in a recent article in The Saturday Evening Post on "The Idle Dollar." Excerpts from Mr. Atwood's article follow:

"Frequently banks state that as high as 90 per cent of all such applications are granted and for from 60 to 75 per cent of the amount asked for. Allowing that the banks make these figures as favorable to their own case as possible, it seems strange that we are told again and again that banks are not lending at all.

"If we take into account the whole class of regular bank borrowers, the plain fact is very few want to borrow yet. For the word 'borrow' is merely another name for the word 'debt,' and we face a great world-wide drive to get out of debt.

"An experienced small-city banker, asked if banks were lending freely enough, wisely replied: 'The really good borrower does not wish to borrow now. In fact, I think our customers are making a remarkably fine showing in paying off their loans, especially loans of long standing.'

The Shrinkage of Credit

"Or if we think of business concerns rather than of individuals, it is conservative to say that those able to maintain high credit ratings have been mostly the ones able to maintain ample cash resources and, therefore, least in need of credit. As prices and costs fell, many concerns found themselves with plenty of cash because of the shrinkage in operations. Cash resources were still further swollen by reduced dividends, and smaller inventories made bank borrowings still less necessary.

"Expressed in another way, banks cannot expand credit, they cannot make loans, unless there is a demand for the same. Fundamentally, the business transaction makes the loan, the loan does not make the transaction. It is a mistake to try to force upon business organizations funds which they do not need. Under the circumstances the 'idle dollar' is a natural and proper enough phenomenon. A demand for credit is difficult to create artificially, and there is always danger in so doing.

"Banks must be liquid enough at all times to pay depositors. The idea of a commercial loan is that it represents a self-liquidating process in business. If the banker makes only those advances that are inherently sound, and selects his maturities wisely, he will have incoming funds to meet demands.

Government Lending

"As everybody knows, the Government has vast lending agencies, for home owners, farmers, and the like. These have nothing to do with the subject of this article, except that all such Government operations would be impossible if the banks did not lend the Government money for the purpose.

"No one can get a time when borrowing will be resumed. But it will come when men once more feel that conditions are sufficiently settled to warrant them in taking chances, in entering upon deals, and in trying to make money."

Mr. Atwood says that it may be that the banks are overcautious now, just as they were overcautious in 1929, but calls attention to the fact that until a little more than a year ago banks were failing "partly because they had loaned too freely, and were being criticized right and left for precisely that fault." He adds:

"Indeed, the banks which had been cautious in their lending policy came through the crisis safely. Under such conditions it is utterly useless to criticize banks for not making loans. After the experience they had for several years, especially in 1932 and 1933, it is only natural that they should relax their requirements very slowly and gradually.

"Unfortunately, many of the applications for loans are not from people who want temporary banking accommodation for three or six months and are quite able to meet their maturity dates, but are from those who really need permanent capital. They are busted and they want someone to stake them to a new start. What they really seek is a partner to furnish them with long-time capital. But depositors insist upon being paid on demand, and, therefore, it is a grave question whether banks should tie up their funds for any length of time."

HOW ONE FARMER HELPED HIMSELF

A farmer accustomed to keeping records found that it cost $16.50 to produce an acre of corn. His average yield was 33 bushels, selling for 50 cents per bushel. On this basis he was producing without either profit or loss. A study of his costs indicated means by which the yields might be increased without proportional expenses. By making use of facts discovered at the Experiment Stations, the farmer secured an increased yield of four and one-half bushels per acre (37½ bushels, instead of 33). By increasing the yield and holding down expenses, this farmer was able to make a profit of six cents per bushel.

BIG BUSINESS INGRATITUDE

Executives of the large corporations, big business representative of American industry, have been the most implacable foes of the recovery program of President Roosevelt. These who could have been of greatest assistance, as effort is made to revive a prostration, have too frequently sought to obstruct rather than aid.

Facts recently reveal information which clearly indicates that corporate wealth, big business have profited so greatly from the varied activities of the New Deal to restore prosperity that intelligent self-interest would seem to dictate that they support the President instead of endeavoring to thwart his patriotic endeavors.

The story which reveals the extent to which corporate wealth has profited as result of the New Deal may be briefly, yet completely told. During the first six months of 1933 representative companies and corporations received a profit of 1.7 per cent on the money put into business.

During the first six months of 1934 industry realized a return of 5.7 per cent on its investment, just a little short of the 6 per cent return regarded as normal. These are figures compiled by the National City Bank of New York and certainly cannot be said to have been prepared for presenting the federal administration in a favorable light.

Profits earned by 407 of the largest corporations in the nation during the first six months of 1934 totalled $385,000,000 as contrasted with $75,000,000 in the first six months of 1933 and only $19,000,000 in the first six months of 1932. This story of increased corporation earnings tells in dollars and cents of the beneficial results which have come to industrial interests of the nation as result of the intelligently conceived and energetically prosecuted program for bringing back better times.

One can but feel that it is the basest sort of ingratitude which is reflected by big business as it seeks to torpedo the New Deal. In underhanded and devious ways representatives of concentrated wealth continue to try to slip a knife into the President's program. Vast sums of money is being spent in distributing misleading propaganda which seeks to discredit recovery activities.

These the captains of commerce and industry are contributing to funds which are being spent to embarrass the President and impede his program. They seek to elect as many senators and representatives as possible in order to harass the superb leader in the White House, who has incurred their enmity because his chief consideration has been to improve the status of the common folk, the average individual, the farmer, the laborer, the small business man.

The congressional election on Nov. 6 is one of great importance. It is vital to continuation of the recovery program so well launched, that we send to congress men who are in sympathy with the program of the great leader in the White House.

In Kentucky there will be elected nine congressmen. The nine Democratic nominees are men of proven ability. The incumbents have shown that they are effective and loyal allies of the President. Kentucky can do nothing that will so encourage President Roosevelt as to send to congress these men on whom he can depend.

CONGRESSMAN VINSON

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 25—Congressman Fred M. Vinson, Ashland, Democratic nominee for congress in the eighth district, as a member of the important ways and means committee of the house of representatives, has come to be recognized as an authority on federal taxation.

He participated actively in drafting of the revenue measure enacted by the last congress and took a prominent part in investigations conducted to ascertain how loopholes in the income tax law might be plugged so as to prevent evasion of tax payment, revealed to have been extensively practiced.

Congressman Vinson was chairman of a sub-committee of the ways and means committee which conducted research into the problem of duplicate taxation and findings summarized are regarded as of especial importance in drafting future revenue measures.

Congressman Vinson led the fight for a reduction in the federal tax on manufactured tobacco and directed the hearing held in Washington on the subject.

Congressman Vinson, who seeks reelection, is 44 years of age, was graduated from Centre College, after which he practiced law in Louisa, place of his birth. His first important elective position was that of commonwealth's attorney in the Thirty-second Judicial district. He was Democratic state campaign chairman in the campaign in which Senator Barkley was elected to the United States senate the first time.

Paul Mallon, Washington newspaper columnist, said of Vinson that he was one of a few members of the house who really understood provisions of the revenue measure enacted by the last congress, and paid tribute to his statesmanship. He was first elected to the 68th session of congress from the old ninth district and has been a Democratic leader in Eastern Kentucky ever since.

Drought or No Drought, You Can Make Jellies and Jams stantly before and while boiling. Boil hard one minute. Remove from fire, and stir in half a bottle fruit pectin. Skim. Pour quickly. Paraffin and Makes about six glasses of six fluid ounces each.

More Delicious Jams

Pineapple and Apricot Jam: Crush the fruit from one No. 2 can pineapple and one No. 2 can apricots. Grind or chop fine. Juice of one lemon may be added if more tart jam is desired. Put six and a half cups (two and three-quarters pounds) of sugar and the fruit into large kettle. Mix well and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard two minutes. Remove from fire and stir in one bottle fruit pectin. Then stir and skim by turns for just three minutes to cool slightly and to prevent floating fruit. Pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once. Makes about eleven glasses of six fluid ounces each.

Peach Jam: Put three and a half cups (one and a half pounds) of sugar and two cups (one pound) of well crushed drained canned peaches in a large kettle. Mix well, and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard one minute. Remove from fire and stir in half a bottle fruit pectin. Skim. Pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once. Makes about six glasses of six fluid ounces each.

A Special Treat

Peach Jelly: Drain two cups (one pound) of syrup from canned peaches. Juice of one lemon may be added to syrup if it lacks tartness. Put four cups (one and three-quarters pounds) of sugar and the syrup into a large saucepan. Mix and bring to boiling over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. As soon as mixture boils, add half a bottle fruit pectin, stirring constantly, and bring to a full rolling boil. Remove from fire, skim and pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once. Makes about six glasses of six fluid ounces each.

ONE of the problems left by the recent disastrous drought is the housewife's concern about her jam and jelly cupboard. But, cheer up, housewives! Even if you were not able to put up your usual quota of these delicacies during August and September, there is still a way out, and there need be no lack of delicious jams, jellies and relishes on your shelves this winter.

Fortunately they can be made from canned and dried fruits, from canned and bottled fruit juices, and even from canned vegetables. One way to do it is by means of fruit pectin, a jellifying agent, and the recipe book that accompanies every bottle gives full, directions for making delicious spreads from the different types of canned fruits and juices.

But the quickest way to convince you is to give you some tested recipes for making jellies and jams without fresh fruits. Try the following and you'll quickly be wanting to make some more.

Pineapple and Plums

Pineapple Mint Jelly: Wash one cup (four ounces) of spearmint leaves and stems. Do not remove the leaves from the stems. Place in a big (three quart) saucepan and press with wooden potato masher or glass. (If spearmint leaves are not available, from one leaf to one and a half teaspoons spearmint extract may be added to jelly after skimming.)

Put three and a half cups (one and a half pounds) of sugar and two cups (one pound) of well crushed drained canned peaches into a large kettle. Mix well, and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard one minute. Remove from fire and stir in half a bottle fruit pectin. Skim. Pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once. Makes about six glasses of six fluid ounces each.

Soy Beans Yield "Pinch" Hay Crop

Should Be Planted on Soils High Enough in Lime to Grow Clover.

By Prof. John Harren of the New York State College of Agriculture.—WNU Service.
Soy beans or mixtures in which soy beans occur will provide farmers with the second best emergency hay crop. Although soy beans give a satisfactory yield on sour soils, they do best on soils high enough in lime to grow the common clovers well. The earlier they are sown, the better. For early planting, the Wilson variety of soy beans is recommended. For later sowings, the Black Eyebrow and Manchurian varieties may be used. About 115 pounds of seed to the acre should be enough.

Sudan grass is best adapted for soy bean mixtures. When a mixture is used, about 60 pounds of soy beans and 15 to 20 pounds of sudan grass to the acre is advised.

If the land chosen for a catch hay crop, when soy beans are to be planted, happens to be slightly wet, it would be wise to use Japanese millet along with soy beans rather than the soy beans alone or a mixture of soy beans and sudan grass. The procedure with the Japanese millet is the same as for sudan grass.

For soy beans and soy bean combinations, fertilize with at least 200 pounds of superphosphate to the acre, and always inoculate the soy bean seed.

Sowing of oats and sorghum, or oats and sudan grass may take place for extra pasturage. Soil conditions should be about the same as for good corn.

Sunflowers Recommended to Dairymen for Silage

Sunflowers may be grown by many farmers this year to make silage for their dairy cattle, as a result of damage to other crops by chinch bugs and drought, according to Prof. C. S. Rhode, chief in dairy extension at the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

The fact that sunflowers are chinch bug resistant makes them a possible silage crop this year. In past seasons when bugs have been bad, dairymen have grown sunflowers and have found that the resulting silage was fairly palatable, Rhode said. Cows fed sunflower silage, however, do not generally produce as well as those given regular corn silage.

Where harley fields have been practically destroyed by the chinch bugs, farmers may seed a portion of this land to sunflowers. The crop may be seeded any time and is usually drilled in rows 42 inches apart with the plants 10 inches apart in the rows.

Experiments conducted at the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, indicate that the best time to cut sunflowers for silage is when about one-fourth of the plants are in bloom. Silage made from sunflowers at this stage is more palatable and is superior for milk production to that made from more mature plants. The composition and flavor of the milk are not affected by sunflower silage.

Soys for Breeding Swine

While the feeding of soy beans to fattening hogs results in soft pork, beans may be satisfactorily fed to brood sows during gestation. A mineral mixture should always be supplied with the beans, because they are deficient in minerals, as is also corn. Unless the sows are to be sold soon after the pigs are weaned, soy beans may also be fed during part of the suckling period, though at that time they should be mixed with tankage to the extent of about one-third. If the sows are to be fattened after the pigs are weaned, tankage or some protein concentrate mixture should be used as a supplement.—Wm. J. Farmer.

Watch the Lambs

Lambs that play and frolic are usually in good health but you need to see about those that have drooping ears or lag behind the flock, says a writer in the Missouri Farmer. If you pick one up that seems very light you have waited too long, that lamb is out of condition. If you have owned sheep any length of time just a glance over the flock will tell you whether all is well. See them if you can once every day, once a week look them over very closely. In that way you will detect trouble before it has done you serious damage. Sheep need watching through the warm season.

The gross farm income of the United States in 1933 was about $9,383,000,000, or over a billion dollars higher than in 1932.

Foods for Fall

Of course you're not going to serve the same foods this fall as you have been serving all summer. The change in temperature naturally calls for a change in diet. But what different foods have you particularly in mind? Let's see. (Business of chewing re-activates a pencil.) We were stumped last year by this question, so we made out a list of canned foods that will supply the variation and also the nutritive qualities that you need at this time of the year. Here it is:

Kidney beans, beets, okra with tomatoes, pumpkin, elder, sweet potatoes, sauerkraut, apple butter, wine fruit salad, oysters, codfish, tuna, salmon, frankfurters, veal roast, mutton broth, apricots and pears. How's that for a starter? You can go on from there yourself. And here are a couple of inexpensive recipes which include some of these foods.

These Taste Good

Beets with Vinegar Dressing: Heat the contents of a No. 2 can of sliced beets, drain one and a half pounds spareribs, dust with salt and pepper, and place in a baking pan. Pour two-thirds cup water over, and bake in a moderate oven—350 degrees—for about one hour, basting occasionally. Heat the contents of a No. 2 can sauerkraut, and pile in center of a hot platter. Arrange the spareribs around the kraut. This costs less than forty-five cents and serves four.

POULTRY

CLEANING POULTRY HOUSE IS ADVISED

Building Should Be Freed of Annoying Insects.

By M. D. Warren, Entomologist, Illinois State Natural History Survey—WNU Service.

Before farmers begin housing their chickens for fall and winter production it will be decidedly profitable to thoroughly clean and treat the poultry buildings for lice, mites and other parasitic insects.

Unless effective control measures are taken at this time, flocks often become so heavily infested with these insect pests that they become unthrifty, egg production declines and thousands of dollars in poultry profits are lost by producers.

Practically all poultry insects can be killed by applications of any kind of oil. This applies particularly to mites, bed bugs and fleas which feed on the birds by sucking their blood at night. In the daytime these insects usually leave the birds and hide in cracks and crevices in the poultry house.

Some of the more economical and effective oils for this purpose are creosote, kerosene and waste crank case oil, applied with a brush or emulsified with soap and water and sprayed on the inside of the building. Dormant tree spray emulsions mixed at the rate of four or five gallons in 100 gallons of water are also efficient poultry insect destroyers. All corners, cracks and rough places in the wood should be saturated with the oils to insure satisfactory control.

Poultry lice spend their entire lives on the birds and thus must be controlled by treating the fowls with dips, powders or gases toxic to the insects. For this a good grade of sodium fluoride is economical. Each bird is dusted individually by applying a pinch of sodium fluoride under each wing and around the vent, roughing the feathers to allow the powder to sift into the plumage, or the birds may be dipped in a solution of one ounce of sodium fluoride in one gallon of water.

Where it is impractical to handle each bird, painting the roosts with 40 per cent nicotine sulphate is recommended. A line of the disinfectant about one fourth inch wide is applied along the roosts just before the birds retire. The nicotine fumes filter through the birds' feathers, killing the lice. This treatment should be repeated in 10 to 14 days as it does not kill the eggs. All lime or whitewash should be removed from the roosts before nicotine sulphate is applied.

Scaly leg, caused by mites feeding under the leg scales, can be controlled by dipping the feet and legs in a solution containing two parts of raw linseed oil and one part of kerosene.

Confined Hens Lay Well, Experiments Have Shown

That hens kept in confinement, if properly fed, will lay quite as well as those of the same age on the usual limited range and even tend to lay eggs larger in size, has been shown in experiments at the United States Animal Husbandry Experiment farm at Beltsville, Md., covering a five-year period.

These experiments further showed that neither the fertility nor the hatchability of the eggs was affected by the confinement of the birds laying them. Important considerations in poultry flock economy. There was also no appreciable difference in mortality in the flocks maintained experimentally under the two systems of management.

Both lots of birds were fed the same rations except that those confined to their laying house had cod-liver oil added to the basic ration and the non-confined birds were allowed to range in grass yards about 70 by 100 feet in size. Every effort was made to furnish the confined birds all the sunshine possible through the open windows in the laying house, the sunshine and cod-liver oil precautions preventing possible ill effects from vitamin deficiency. Both lots were furnished electric lights from 5 a. m. until daylight each day from September 15 to April 15 each year.

Cellophane Protects Chicks

It is well known among poultry raisers that young chicks have a tendency to pick at everything bright. Often they will pick to death another chick which becomes slightly scratched or injured, because they are attracted by the sight of blood. Experiments indicate that blue cellophane can be successfully used to control this trouble. The cellophane is simply placed in wooden frames similar to those used for wire screens and then fitted into the windows of the chicken houses.

Hens and Their Diet

The practice of throwing grain on the floor in soiled litter is coming to be looked upon with disdain. Experiment stations and commercial poultry farms have found that the normal laying flock can be fed both grain and mash in hoppers, and that they will consume about the correct proportion of the two. The same type of hopper that holds the dry mash can be used for scratch feed. But where grain is hopper fed, additional hopper space must be provided.
